Thanks to mayor Hamm for sharing his Mayor's Minute with others in City leadership. As a lifelong resident of Moore, I am honored to have the position of Assistant City Manager. Prior to this role, I directed the City's economic development efforts beginning in 2002. While I still manage our economic development activity, I also serve as the public affairs director and oversee the Parks and Recreation and Information Technology departments.

No two days are ever the same and I enjoy bouncing from creation and management of the City's website to recruiting business and industry into our city limits. In between time, I connect with other entities like Moore Schools, Moore Chamber and Cleveland County to make sure the City of Moore is represented.

I am most proud of the work we have done in retail recruitment and the valuable revenue it generates. Cities' basic operations are funded through sales tax and are constantly faced with increasing operational costs. Moore's geographic location and access to I-35 is an asset to recruiting businesses. However, it also takes a willing city council and manager to actively recruit companies and create an "open for business" attitude for development. We have this in spades and I'm privileged to represent the city I care so deeply about. I can be reached at debrey@cityofmoore.com
